

ROBBING a railroad train is one of the picturesque enterprises of these times and had more success than one could ever imagine for it. Indeed, it was supposed that one of the things the iron horse guaranteed travelers against was the old summons to stand and deliver. But what engineer will pass in the night time a red light; and the train being stopped, how easily a half dozen bravos go through it. Yet the train robbers have lately had a bad season. All the men who robbed the Southern Express in Arkansas last December are now either captured or killed. The troops have just captured another lot in Mexico, and the game seems to be becoming dangerous.

THE New York Journal moralizes thus on the advantages of marriage: There is not a doubt in the minds of all scientific and statistical persons that marriage is conducive to longevity. Mr. Michael Lyons was married three times. He is now 101 years old and ready to walk up to the altar once again. The patriarchs were extensively married men, and they all lived to good old ages. Look at Brigham Young. There are those who say he is not dead and that he will never die. Bachelors in this cold season should think of these facts. No bachelor, as a rule, can ever expect to live beyond forty-five years. After that age he must expect to dry up.

MR. GOODWIN, a real down-East Yankee, has contrived a great improvement on the ordinary human hand for his own use. His hand was amputated, and he fitted to the stump on his arm by a regular socket joint an extension thereof which may be called rather a handle than a hand; but it is a handle to many tools. He had adopted that ingenious notion of the tool-makers who sell in a little box one handle and a dozen tools—a screw-driver, a gimlet, a gouge, a chisel, and so on. Goodwin thus fits to the end of his arm any implement that he has occasion for and is ready for anything, but he can't make a face with his fingers.

REPRESENTATIVE CLARK has introduced an excellent bill in the Ohio Legislature. It proposes to appropriate five cents a day from the earnings of life prisoners to the use of the families. This is right as far as it goes, but why not set aside the net proceeds of the profits on the labor of every prisoner to the support of the families of those who have them. Every prisoner can, and ought to, be made to earn more than his own expenses in prison. No one has a higher or more sacred right to his surplus earnings than his dependent wife and children. This principle should characterize the management of work-houses as well.

THE story of the survivors of the crew of the wrecked ship Alfred Watts revives, on a small scale, the horrors of that most frightful of all tragedies of the sea, the wreck of the French frigate Medusa on the bank of Arguila, and the sufferings of the survivors on the great raft, on which for weeks they starved, thirsted, fought insane battles and threw each other to the sharks in their delirium.

If the bill for the inspection of meats for exportation becomes a law it will put the responsibility for the exclusion of American pork products from German and French ports where it belongs—on the governments of those countries in the interests of German and French butchers, not upon the quality of our exports, where those governments have dangerously attempted to place it.

THE New York Board of Health advises the Board of Education of that State to refuse to employ any teacher during the prevalence of smallpox who cannot produce a certificate of vaccination. They also recommend that no pupils be received in the public schools without a like certificate.

It is well that influential Irishmen in Philadelphia and elsewhere have placed men on guard to watch Mr. Chamberlain and aristocratic Secretary Bayard in the interest of the National Fishery Association. Chamberlain is wily and the Secretary easy. If these two gentlemen have their way unchecked the poor fishermen may whistle for a living.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

[PRESS DISPATCHES TO THE GAZETTE.]

A WOMAN'S WORK.

A Cold-Blooded Murder in a San Francisco Restaurant.
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—Martin Van Buren Burke was shot and instantly killed at 7 o'clock last night by J. G. Crawford, with whom he had not been on good terms for some time past. At the hour named Burke was making up the day's accounts in the restaurant, 208 First street, of which he was proprietor. No one was present except Mrs. McGregor, who was employed by Burke as cook and waitress. A man stepped hurriedly into the place and walking to the counter asked the person behind it, "Is your name Burke?" "It is," was the answer. The hand of the stranger was raised and a pistol bullet was sent through Burke's right temple. He fell to the floor without a sound, and the murderer, leaning over the counter, and taking careful aim, lodged a second bullet in the head of his prostrate victim. Both wounds were necessarily fatal, each penetrating the brain. The assassin then strode rapidly away, and the sole witness of the tragedy notified the police.

Crawford was afterward arrested at his house, 217 Elder street, by Detectives Coffey and Meagher. He displayed a remarkable coolness, denying all knowledge of the occurrence. When told that his victim was dead, he exclaimed: "If the fellow is dead I am glad to hear it!" A pistol was found in his room, with the cartridges carefully removed and the chambers wiped out. About the head of two of the chambers, however, fresh powder smoke had gathered and the barrel indicated a recent discharge. It was warm and permeated with the smell of recently burned powder. When Crawford was arrested, his wife, the cause of the trouble, was with him. She stated that her husband was with her in her room from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 7:30 in the evening, when they went together to Swan's for their supper. Crawford also attempts to set up an alibi, but grave discrepancies exist between his story and that of his wife.

A MANIAC BITER.

He Inflicts Horrible Injuries on One of His Cellmates.
NEVADA CITY, Cal., Feb. 3.—A crazy man named Robert Bennett was brought from Grass Valley yesterday and lodged in the County Jail. Last evening Bennett was locked in a cell with Pat McNulty, a prisoner from Truckee, who is in for selling whisky to Indians, and a boy named Hicks, who was in for larceny. During the temporary absence of the jailer, Bennett had one of his crazy fits, and seizing the Truckee prisoner, threw him upon the floor of the cell and began biting him. Before the jailer returned the madman had bitten his fellow prisoner in a most shocking manner about the face, head and body. The injured man is in a very precarious condition, and serious results may occur. His chin and cheeks were fearfully lacerated and chewed by the frantic lunatic.

INTO THE LION'S JAW.

A Variety Performer Fearfully Lacerated by a Lion.
LONDON, Feb. 4.—At the conclusion of a performance at a music hall in Dublin last night, Mlle. Senide, one of the performers, placed her head in a lion's mouth for the purpose of having her photograph taken. In that position a sudden flash of light caused the beast to close his jaws, and he required growing to the corner of his cage, dragging his helpless victim with him. Then he shook the girl violently, tearing her bare breast with his claws. Attendants at once sprang toward the cage and attacked the lion with iron, and finally succeeded in beating him off. Mlle. Senide was removed to her lodgings and medical aid summoned. Her neck, shoulders, breast and one arm were terribly lacerated, but she is still alive.

GERMANY AND AUSTRIA.

A Treaty Which is Expected to Have a Tranquilizing Effect.
BERLIN, Feb. 4.—The Berlin National Zeitung says Herr Von Bennigsen, leader of the National Liberal party, will have an interview with Prince Bismarck next Tuesday, and they will then probably make arrangements to render as little public as possible the debate on the bill providing for the new loan.

On account of the increased military preparations, several of the Berlin papers dilate upon the eminently pacific character of the treaty between Germany and Austria, the publication of which they may produce, tranquillizing effect in Paris and St. Petersburg admonishing and warning disturbers of the peace, who ever they may be.

San Francisco Second Choice.
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—The Examiner this morning prints an interview with 179 members of Congress in regard to the place of holding the next National Democratic Convention. Twenty-five members express themselves in favor of New York City for first choice, thirty-four are for San Francisco, thirty-four for Chicago, twenty-five for St. Louis and fourteen for Cincinnati. The other members are non-committal or divided between the cities of Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Paul, Indianapolis, Washington, Louisville and Richmond. San Francisco receives a majority of the votes for second choice. The result shows that the strongest feeling for San Francisco comes from the South and West.

Afraid of John L.
LONDON, Feb. 4.—John L. Sullivan's friend, Barnard, met John Smith and Fleming, the latter's manager, last night, but was unable to arrange a match between Sullivan and Smith. Smith declined to fight before the last of May, while Barnard refused to postpone the fight beyond the last of April. Smith stated that he would proceed to America in the autumn, and would arrange a match there with Sullivan.

War in Freight Rates.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—The war in freight rates instituted by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, is the one topic discussed in railroad circles. The St. Paul made a cut of two cents on all classes of freight to Missouri river points to-day, and followed it up later with an additional cut of one-half of a cent on the first-class and three cents on the second.

RIO BONITO.

What a Renolite Saw in That Modern Paradise.

D. Allen, Esq., returned from a week's visit to the Golden State last night, and was met by a GAZETTE reporter this morning. On being asked as to what he saw, he responded that he visited the San Jose Citrus Fair, and that the exhibit there did not come up to what he expected to see. His disappointment, he suggested, was probably owing to the lateness of the season and the fact that that part of California had made no pretensions to making the orange a specialty; that the grape, peach, prune and other fruits were the favorites of that section, and that there was quite a display of these in a dried state and preserved state, as well as oranges, etc.

"Did you see any other portions of the State?"

"Yes; after getting through with business in San Francisco, on my way home, I took a run up the California and Oregon road as far as Biggs."

"Well, what have you to say of that locality?"

"I found the valley much more extensive and attractive than I anticipated, and was quite surprised to see that the large tracts of land were used almost exclusively for wheat growing. The large fields of grain lead one to the conclusion that the ranchers went in there believing it their sole mission to raise wheat, and to depend upon Chinamen for all else in the shape of farm productions for home consumption. There were but few gardens, and very few trees of any kind about any of their homes. On nearing Marysville, I saw that a few had changed wheat for hops, and a few had planted thriving looking orchards, and near Wheatland and at other points here and there, some of the more enterprising were giving some attention to orchard growing."

"What have you to say about Biggs and the surroundings?"

"From my observations, I concluded the citizens of that village are just awakening from a long sleep, and are beginning to realize there is more on earth than wheat growing, and that the soil in that vicinity and the other physical conditions are such as to warrant them in following the example of the few who have been more aggressive and progressive. In my short stay and drives into the country, I was convinced from the orchards and vineyards I saw that at least a portion of Butte county will be the adopted home of the orange, peach, grape, apricot, prunes and other like fruits, possessing, as that part of the country does, the very richest soil, which varies in character from the most fertile loam to that of almost adobe, which has a depth that insures durability."

"Some of our citizens are interested in the Rio Bonito colony; did you visit it, if so what are your impressions as to its success?"

"The fact that Congressman Biggs located the lands, and accumulated a competency on them and was succeeded by his son, should be a guarantee as to the quality. It has been a wheat and stock ranch, and a small orchard and vineyard by the dwelling house is sufficient evidence of the success of the grape, apple and peach, and the large vineyard, and about sixty acres of an orchard adjoining, will satisfy the most skeptical, that fruit growing will be made a success there. The tremendous growth of oak and other trees show the strength of the soil, and the lay of the land can not be surpassed, the entire body gently sloping toward the river, whose banks at that point will never be overflowed. This valley, which the village of Biggs is a great thorn in the flesh of Oroville, that has been bidding for the Methodist College, A committee of preachers were sent out by Bishop Potter to select a location, and if straws indicate anything, Rio Bonito will get it. Many sales have already been made by Messrs. Preble and Young, and the college once located on their lands, will not only assure the rapid sale of the tracts they have plotted, but they will have a ready market for the 1,700 acres, adjoining Rio Bonito, bounded while I was there."

"Then you have confidence in the future of that locality?"

"I have; and I have no reason to doubt that intelligent experiments will prove that Rio Bonito and vicinity will soon become noted as one of the favored fruit sections of California. It has the richness of soil, a favorable climate, is accessible to railroads and has the best of water. These will necessarily invite capital, and those who desire lovely homes, and especially who wish to devote themselves to fruit culture. The influx of population to that locality, in a few years, will be great."
